Organising and Organiser Perspective
By Shomit Sirohi

I. Organic Whole and its Parts

Think of any place – Manesar, a village or even a wealthy neihgbourhood.

Now organise this part and whole, in a set of organizing principles called a directive.

II. My Own Experience in Organising Kapashera – Comparable to Any Place

I just went there and talked and that was all I had to do, to imagine committees, unions all of that.

III. Wealthy Meetings with Fidel in Hotels

Imagine that Fidel and you are organizing a meeting – it should be just the organised elements of the paricipants wo then are one part, another part is women, and a third part is a party. All three elements then are organised by the whole movement towards the hotel – this dialectical movement is just the way of Kapashera organizing day.

Imagine there the whole moves fast – and imagine symmetrically. Symmetrically there are women – unionizing the party as wll as part of the organic whole composition.
